Little Miss Muffet,
Who sat on a tuffet,
With nothing but curds and whey

Each day for her dinner, Grew thinner and thinner,

And
soon would have pined away.

While her mother sat
crying,

Afraid she was dying,

A lady in satin and silk
Said, for nutriment ample,

Just send for a sample Of HORLICK'S MALTED MILK.

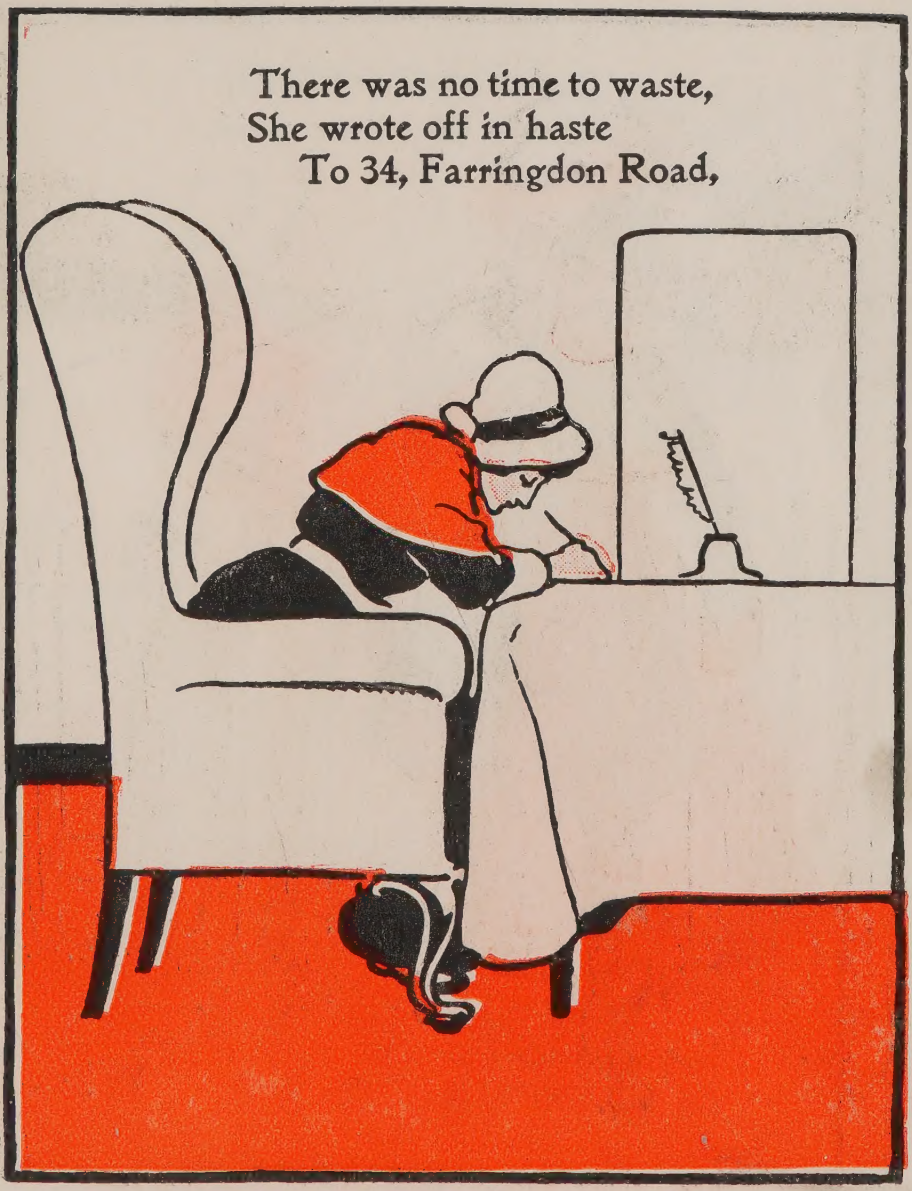
There was no time to waste,
She wrote off in haste
To 34, Farringdon Road,



And a bottle post paid,
For the poor little maid,

Came swift to

Miss Muffet's abode.

She liked it so well, Both the taste and the smell,
That her joy was delightful to see;
She took it each day,
And the parents both say:—

She's now just as strong as can be.

When the news spread around,
It was very soon found
To be good for sick folk of all ages;
The relief which it wrought And the comfort it brought Are a source of surprise to the sages.

Mothers and Others.

Do not delay. Send for a Free Sample of

Horlick's Malted Milk
